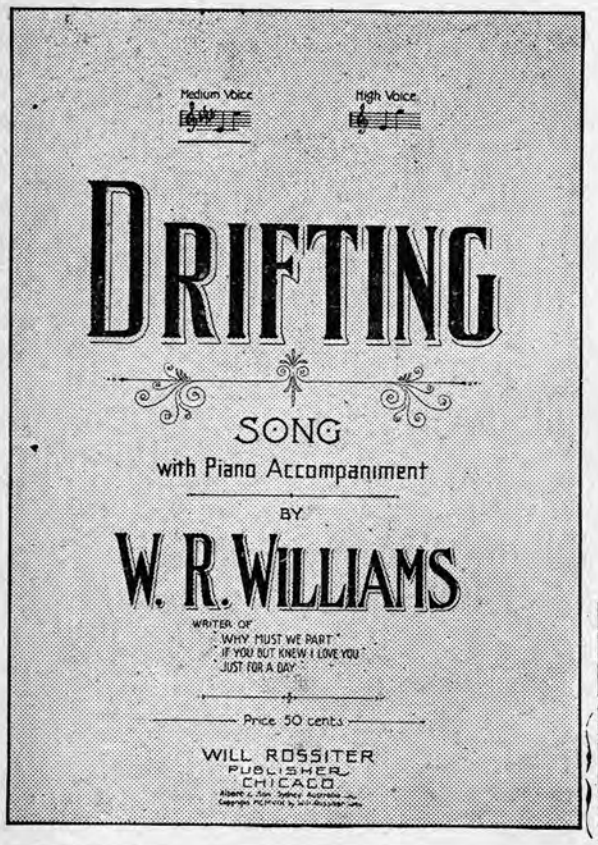
STARMER



DRIFTING

By W. R. WILLIAMS

Since the tremendous success of this song there have been several imitations put on the market, all using the same title "Drifting." For this reason when you order this song, be sure you get the "Drifting" by W. R. Williams, writer of more real hits than any one writer in America.

If you will try this chorus over a few times, playing it slowly and with expression, you'll admit that this song is one of the prettiest you have ever heard.

We have it published in three keys, A flat, B flat and C, so as to fit all voices.

old man by his side, Thrilled with a vet'ran's pride At the sound of the bu-gle's now war's grim command, Calls youth throughout the land To the sound of the bu-gle's blast. He gazed with glist'ning eye, As the soldiers all went by With the blast. The lad with glist'ning eye, Had come to say good bye To the flag he'd fought to save; Then the lad said dear old dad, Would it father he loved so true, Then the lad said dear old dad, I can make your heart feel glad If some day I'd be a sol - dier brave?

see your heart is glad 'Cause I'll be a sol-dier boy in blue

CHORUS.

I'd like to be a sol - dier I want to be like you ___ I want to have a ri - fle And a u-ni-form of blue; ___ I want to hear the bu - gle And the cheers of my com-rades true ___ When I'm big some day I'll go marching a-way And be a soldier boy in blue ___ blue. ___

IN THE VALLEY WHERE THE DAISIES GROW

By W. R. WILLIAMS

¶ This is Mr. W. R. Williams' latest success in the line of "Home" songs, and is without any doubt the best song of this kind written in years. Mr. Williams seems to know just what kind of a song reaches the hearts and sentiments of the music-buying public, and we predict a greater sale for "In the valley where the daisies grow" than that old favorite "On the banks of the Wabash." ¶ Get a copy AT ONCE.

CHORUS.

In the val - ley where the dais - ies grow In the val - ley where we said good - bye When the moon rose in its glo - ry, I told her life's sweet-est sto - ry In the val - ley where the dais - ies grow.
