WHEN the sky in the east flames crimson and gold
In the light of the morning sun,
When in clear lilting voice sweet song-birds rejoice;
Bidding welcome to day just begun;
Then I pass on my way to the labor of day,
And your smile as we part thrills me through,
For it shortens the day till the light fades away,
And evening brings rest and you.

When the shadows have lightened and vanished at last
In the glow of the slow dying day,
When the birds in their nest have all gone to rest,
When the cares of the day have been all brushed away,
Ah, 'tis then that I love to renew
All the sweetness and truth of the love of our youth,
For evening brings rest and you.
