

Theatre Glendon presents
The Zoo Story
by Edward Albee, directed by Ingryd Pleitez

One moment of solitude may cast life-changing outcomes. This Pulitzer prize winning drama takes place on a park bench in New York City's Central Park. Regular conversation goes in an unexpected direction when two men desperately seek to make a connection with one another. The Zoo Story questions the nature of existence and connection, and what it means to bridge that gap in a society where status is a dividing force.

Edward Albee wrote the play in 1958. As he said, "A playwright's job is to ask interesting questions and expect the audience to provide some good answers."
