

THE CENTRE FOR INDIGENOUS
KNOWLEDGES AND LANGUAGES
CELEBRATES
WORLD WATER DAY

Navigating Water Systems
Change with the Ebb and
Flow of Indigenous Knowledges

RACHEL ARSENAULT
PHD STUDENT, EUC, YORK UNIVERSITY

Monday, March 20
12:30-2PM
On Zoom

While Indigenous peoples across Canada and globally are being impacted by water insecurity, these impacts are exacerbated by the impacts from climate change. Through conducting research on how Indigenous peoples are impacted by water insecurity and climate change, I aspire to highlight and accentuate the need for Indigenous-led approaches supported by Indigenous Knowledges, laws, and governance. As Indigenous women are seen as the protectors of water, I would also like to examine the roles of gender within water studies.

Register online
<https://www.yorku.ca/research/cikl/>

CIKL

YORK Centre for Indigenous Knowledges and Languages