Quick Update

AcTinSite is a collaborative project that aims to improve placement accessibility through the co-creation and design of an online toolbox for practitioners and students. We are also assisting with developing a community of practice for practitioners to learn about placement accessibility. We have already finished doing interviews with students and practitioners. While we analyse the interviews, we have been establishing a group of experts related to lived experiences and preparing for the design charette.

Looking Forward

The AcTinSite design charette is happening in June. In the charette, we will use several activities to help draft design ideas for the AcTinSite toolbox. The charette will take place over four half days, most likely during the afternoon or evenings of weekdays. We will share more details as we get closer to June.

The community of practice is beginning to put together a needs assessment, which will help us decide how we communicate, get people to join, and the kinds of every we should host.
