RECITATION "RAGS"

From rags came men like Lincoln, noble brave and true,
From rags came men like Franklin, Edison and Carnegie too,
From rags they rose to riches in wisdom fame and gold,
From rags came a thousand others whose stories have never been told.
That raggedy kid on the corner, he's one of those heroes I know,
He's better fit for life's battle than the kid from millionaire's row.
He's one of life's little soldiers who takes each blow with a grin,
He's learning to fight from childhood, that's why he's bound to win,
Someday when he finds his fortune, to his Mother his gold may bring joy,
But a joy greater still, she will find in a thrill,
Of telling the world 'he's her boy'.

Back to the last line of Chorus

She kisses "Rags," he's just a bundle of rags,
But he's somebody's bundle of joy.
