Now in its 23rd year, the annual Glendon Fridge Festival continues to showcase the artistic and technical talents of Glendon's theatrical student body.

Cast & Crew:

Ins and Outs

“Ins and Outs” tells the story of the female journey through first love. Told through a series of monologues and flashbacks, the play meditates on the presence of the past and how important a role the past plays in who we become in the future.

KugelMenschen

“KugelMenschen” tells the story of two individuals who have long forgotten what it means to be faithful to oneself. Marked by disappointment and abandonment, one became a pretentious cynic who wants to be taken seriously, while the other escaped society's fangs physically by leaving her hometown to find a place where she belongs, to find home. “KugelMenschen” is a comedy discussing subjects such as superficiality, brutalization, escapism, and the struggle for love.

Piecemeal

Set in a restaurant, “Piecemeal” glances into the lives of a couple with a singular past, a family coming apart at the seams, and a lone, waiting man, over the course of a meal that they are never given by a waiter who knows little about what he's doing. Bit by bit, the lives and feelings of the diners unravel, forming a makeshift image of an incomplete puzzle.

“Today's restaurant is theater on a grand scale.”

English Made Simple

“English Made Simple” is a romantic comedy about two people who meet at a party and discover all the possible twists and turns their future relationship could take. “The first three minutes of conversation with someone can determine your relationship for all of eternity”. Is Jack and Jill prepared to play the relationship game despite all the possible risks? Take a journey with two people who long to find an intoxicating and exhilarating kind of love. Discover hilarious constructs of conversation between two people on a balancing act between truth and performance.
