Introduction

This is a revised list of newspapers in microform available in the Microtext Library and the Chen Yu Tung East Asian Library in the John P. Robarts Research Library. The titles are arranged alphabetically by country, then by province or state (if applicable) and by city. Two major collections of particular significance to this guide are Early English Newspapers and Newspapers from the Russian Revolution Era. Unlike the majority of newspapers listed here, none of the titles in either set can be accessed through the University of Toronto's online catalogue.

Early English Newspapers is a collection of seventeenth and eighteenth century periodical literature. It includes the British Library's Burney Collection of Early English Newspapers as well as the holdings of Oxford University's Bodleian Library. Missing issues from these two collections, and some additional titles are supplied from other important collections, such as the Yale University Library. The collection is an important source for contemporary history, literature, drama, and philosophy. In addition to newspapers, it includes broadsides, periodicals, and Charles Burney's manuscripts.

Newspapers from the Russian Revolutionary Era is principally based on the holdings at Columbia University's Herbert Lehman Library. This collection covers almost every facet of the Revolution, and includes papers relating to the Revolution which were printed in other countries.

In addition, the Microtext Library has recently ordered the Eighteenth Century English Provincial Newspapers. This collection covers all known issues of newspapers produced in towns throughout England, and provides a key source of information on national as well as local affairs. Titles from this set will be added to this list as a supplement.

I would like to thank Mr. Greg Patterson for his assistance in carefully editing this text. I would also like to express my gratitude to Mary McTavish, Sofia Skonic, Teresa Hsieh, and Susan Johnston for their help in proofreading.
