Andante grazioso.

O'er the world now the shadows creep,
Day dies in the west,

Stars that in Heav'n awake from sleep, speak once more of rest.
Slumber and dream and have no care,

May ev'-ry star that shines so fair Breathe to your heart

Though we're a-part, All through the long night my heart's fond-est pray'r.
Slowly with tenderness.

Sweet be your dreams, I pray, Angels be nigh,

Sing-ing to you, Love's lul-la-bby;

Rest till the morn-ing light Once a-gain gleams,

God send you hap-pi-ness, sweet be your Andante.

Andante grazioso.

Day returns with its golden light

When night has gone by, bringing the sunshine

Glad and bright back into the sky.

F. H. 674
But till the shadows pass away,
And on your dreams shall dawn the day,
"God be with you,
All the night through;"
Shall be the one pray'r that nightly I pray.
Sweet be your dreams, I pray,
Angels be nigh,
