let the victors in. What rush of alleluias fills let the victors in. Bring near thy great salvation, thou all the earth and sky! What ringing of a thousand harps speaks the triumph Lamb for sinners slain; Fill up the roll of thine elect, then take thy pow'r and nigh! O day for which creation and all its tribes were made! O reign! Appear, Desire of Nations! Thine exiles long for home; Show joy for all its former woes A thousand-fold repaid. in the heavens Thy promised sign, Thou Prince and Savior, come!

Ten thousand times ten thousand In sparkling raiment bright, The knitting severed friendships up Where partings are no as-mies of the ransomed saints Throng up the steps of light. 'Tis finished, all is spar-kle That brimmed with tears of hate, The child no longer father-less Nor finished, Their fight with death and sin; Fling o pen wide the golden gates And wid-ows des-o late, let the victors in.
