Maestoso (d:86)

I tell you they have not died,
They live and breathe with you;
They walk now here at your side,
They tell you things are true. Why

flow'r and soul and God, Knows there is no death!

I tell you they have not died, Their hands clasp yours and mine; They are now but glorified.
They have become divine.

“All is Eternal life!
There is no death!”
THERE IS NO DEATH!

I tell you they have not died,
They live and breathe with you;
They walk here at your side,
They tell you things are true.
Why dream of poppied sod
When you can feel their breath,
When flow'r and soul and God
Knows there is no death!

Death's but an open door,
We move from room to room,
There is one life, no more;
No dying and no tomb.
Why seek ye them above,
Those that ye love dear?
The All of God is Love,
The All of God is Here.

I tell you they have not died,
Their hands clasp yours and mine;
They are but glorified,
They have become divine.
They live! they know! they see!
They shout with every breath:
"Life is eternity!
There is no death!"

The Still, Small Voice

REFRAIN

Hearken, O wandr'ring thro' the night, Heed thou the still, small voice,
Leading thee on to realms of light, Bidding thy

Sweetly it tells of rest from pain, Sorrow and sighing o'er,
In that fair land where Love doth reign Perfect forever more.

Rough is the path and thorny
Thy weary feet must tread;
Dark is the way before thee,
Storm-clouds are overhead.
Dimly is seen the vision,
Low burns the sacred flame;
Yet, thro' the world's loud clamour,
The world's loud clamour,
Yet, thro' the world's loud clamour
Rings clear one Blessed Name.

On Eagles' Wings

REFRAIN

They that wait upon the Lord Shall their strength re-new;
Weariness shall pass away As the morning dew;

They shall run and falter not Who his mercy prove,
They shall mount on Eagles' wings In His perfect love.

1st Verse - Where is thy strength, O pilgrim?
Why doth thy courage fail?
Canst thou not climb the mountain peak,
Or tread the lonely vale?
One Pow'r alone can help thee,
Leading thee all the way;
He will thy faltering footsteps guide,
Keep the flame day to day.
They that wait upon the Lord
Shall Their strength renew;
Weariness shall pass away
As the morning dew;

Cast Thy Burden
(A veritable gem of Sacred melody)

He who knows thy every care shall thy footsteps guide,
Cast thy burden on the Lord, in His love abide.

VERSE. Sometimes the way is dark, the path unknown;
Thy spirit seems to bear its cross alone;
There is no song of bird, no wayside flow'r,
No light to guide thee through the darksome hour, etc.

Jesus of Nazareth King!
(A magnificent song of triumph)

Own we Thy sceptre, in willing thrall,
Hail, hail, King of all!
Jesus of Nazareth, King!

Four Indian Songs
A Cycle of Four Songs

Words from "The Garden of Kama"
by Laurence Hope

Music by
HERMANN LÖHR

(Keys: Low, Medium and High)

To maintain the high standard of previous achievement is something to be placed on the record of any labourer in the field of Art. When Hermann Löhrt submitted "Songs of the Southern Isles" to the verdict of a critical public, they were received with a chorus of approval, but his creative instinct seems not to have rested content with such speedy recognition, and in quick succession he has written these "Four Indian Songs."

Through the medium of Laurence Hope's realistic verse, he has "heard the East a-callin'," like Kipling's "ten year soldier," and for the time being has evidently "heeded nothin' else." All the veiled mysticism, the relentless fascination and the pitiless fatalism of the East have been woven into the texture of these songs. In "Starlight" we seem to see the midnight sky of the Orient ablaze with myriad points of light, which by their cold brilliance intensify the passion and pain of the lover's questionings.

"Just in the Hush Before the Dawn" is full of mystery and eeriness which are heightened by the recurrence of a simple triplet figure in the voice part and the accompaniment. The song closes in a climax eloquently suggestive of the Oriental spirit of "Kismet."

Tragic and poignant feeling throbs in every note of "This Passion is but an Ember." This consummation is reached by very simple harmonic means which alone are a tribute to the composer's talent. "On the City Wall" embodies the tragedy of the meeting of East and West,—of the "blue eyes that conquer the brown eyes,"—and the resultant hopeless love.

"Blue eyes so clear and brilliant,
Brown eyes so dark and deep,
Those are dim and ride away,
These cry themselves to sleep."

Here again, the heights of Love and Sorrow are touched, and the means employed are so simple and direct as to make this number all the more convincing.

If anything further were needed to strengthen the regard in which Hermann Lühr is held by singers and song-lovers the world over, this Cycle of Four Songs would do much to achieve that object.
