VOICE

Bill Jackson was a poor old dub Who joined the "Dark-town Now sitting right there in that clan There chanced to be a

Vamp

Poker Club" He cursed the day he told them he would join.
His one-eyed man Bill watched him from the corner of his eye.
The

Money seemed like it had wings If he held queens some one had kings Each one-eyed man would deal and then 'Twould cost Bill Jackson five or ten.

night he would con-tri-bute all his coin. He said: "I'll play them rose and looked a-round him with a sigh, He said: "I think it tight to-night, No bob tail flush will make me bite, When I go in my is a shame, There's some one cheat-ing in this game! Of course it would'n't hand will be a peach," He played them tight but lost his pile And do to name the guy So I won't give the par-ty's name But he got peev-ish af-ter while He rose and looked a-round an' made this speech, if I see him cheat a-gain I'll take my fist and close his oth-er eye!"
CHORUS Slower

Well, you see this nice new razor, I had it sharpened just today; I'm goin' to tell you all some brand new rules. Now follow them when you play. Keep your hands above the table when you're dealin'; please, Don't be stick-in' any aces in between your knees; Don't be makin' funny signs for to tip your hand, Don't be talkin' any language I don't understand. Don't be dealin' from the bottom, 'cause it looks too rough, and remember that in poker, five cards is enough. When you bet put up the chips for I don't like it when you're shy, When you're broke go get some money, you can join us bye and bye. Pass the cards for me to shuffle every time before you deal. If there's any thing wrong I can see. You ain't goin' to play this according to Hoyle you're goin' to play this according to me.
