

Theatre Glendon Presents:

'La mirada del hombre oscuro' (The Dark Man's Gaze)

Written by: Ignacio del Moral

Theater Glendon is proud to present the thought-provoking production of 'La mirada del hombre oscuro' by Ignacio del Moral, a Spanish playwright who in recent decades has dedicated himself through his art, to battling the social injustices we experience on a daily basis.

Winner of the highly reputed Spanish Society of Authors prize and renowned among contemporary dramatic works of Spain, the play 'La mirada del hombre oscuro' exposes some of the social problems that afflicts Spain. The universal themes of racism, immigration, and family all come together in the gripping tale of the marginalized illegal immigrant.

Through this tragic comedy the odyssey of Ombasi is told. Ombasi is an immigrant who, with the company of a friend, decides to leave his African home country in search of a better future. After a long voyage Ombasi manages to reach the Spanish shores, only to meet a dysfunctional family consisting of a stubborn father, a capricious mother, and two confused children. In spite of his misfortune, Ombasi does not lose hope of starting a new life full of opportunities and wellbeing. However, nothing turns out to be how he imagined.

This play at times comical and at others somber, will make you laugh, cry, and without doubt make you reflect on the social reality of our time. Do not miss this play full of upheaval and suspense!
