Director's Note

This play, or cabaret, about WWI came as a result of almost six months of research and workshops conducted by the students of Approaches to Theatre class. It was also prompted by a variety of international attempts to revise the history - causes, effects and the aftermath of the Great War. My intention was to understand, on the eve of the centenary of WWI, what has remained of this capital event in the collective memory of the younger generations. We are also using social media to incorporate our in-house audience and online viewership in this collective debate on today's meaning of WWI. Please feel free to contribute.
