Tempo di Marcia

"Come in!" said Father Johnson, as a knock came on the door, His young-est son walked in, His face a grin; He twirled his thumbs, and blushed quite red and said: "Dear Dad, I hate To Young John-son mar-ried and a year has passed since he's been wed, He met his Pa one day, And fa-ther heard him say: "My wife's the lim-it, seems to think, I'm out with girls each night, You tell you, but I'm going to elope tonight at eight. His know me better, father dear, you know she isn't right. His father winked his eye, As he made this reply, father winked both eyes, Said: "Don't apologize!"

CHORUS: Slower.

"Your Daddy did the same thing fifty years ago,
Your Daddy did the same thing fifty years ago,

He went to a lot of bother, Just to have you call him father, Mother worried like the dickens, Your old man was fond of chickens,

Everybody thought your dear old dad was slow,
All the girls knew your daddy wasn't slow,
And if it's not too brother thought your Ma would wed another. But they couldn't fool your Daddy much to say, your Pa can go a bit today, they couldn't fool your Daddy fifty years ago, He acted in the same old way; But your

in your mother's eyes, Told an awful lot of lies, and that's why you're mother never knew, What your father used to do, and that's why you're here today? "Your day!"

here today?! "Your day!"
