Allegro Moderato

Thousands of years ago or maybe more,
Robinson Crusoe was a good old scout,

Out on an island on a lonely shore,
Robinson Crusoe landed

one fine day, No rent to pay, And no wife to obey;
His good man Friday now and then, But he knew when He was chasing a hen;

They built a little hut, Lived there till Friday, But Saturday night it was shut.

Friday felt very blue, He said it's wrong of you, Couldn't you fix it for two?

CHORUS

Where did Robinson Crusoe go, with Friday on Saturday night? Every Saturday night they would start into roam, And on Sunday morning they'd come staggering home.

On this island lived wild men in cannibal trim; And where there are wild men there must be wild women, So where did Robinson Crusoe go, with Friday on Saturday night?

IF I KNOCK THE 'L' OUT OF KELLY

'IT WOULD STILL BE KELLY TO ME'

WORDS BY
SAM M. LEWIS &
JOE YOUNG

MUSIC BY BERT GRANT

If I knock the 'L' out of Kelly, it would still be Kelly to me.
Sure a single 'L', or a double 'L', should look just the same to an Irish-eyed eye.
