The Man In The Silvery Moon

Words by A. SEYMOUR BROWN

Moderato

Every boy and every girl worship at some secret shrine, Tho' by day he's far a way and I feel so aw-fly blue,

Dream of sweet-hearts and of lovers and of happiness divine,
I am happy and contented, for I know he will be true,

I have carried such a secret Since when I was sweet sixteen,
As the shadows fall at evening And he lights the eastern sky.

I have never loved a mortal man that I have ever seen
On a ladder made of moon-beams He descends from up on high.

You can understand just how I feel,
When I tell you that my dream man is real.

If a mortal man like this were real,
What a wealth of love I could reveal.

CHORUS

For I'm in love with the man in the silver moon,
And he sends down his love-light to me,
That's the face so ethereal I've seen in my dreams, my soul affinity. He hides his own mellow light heath the shadows of night. As we cuddle together and spoon. I'll never be satisfied until I am the bride of the man in the silvery moon. For I'm in moon.
