Words and Music
By Chas. K. Harris

The lights along Broadway were bright as the sun, just The lights along Broadway grew dim with the dawn, The after the play had been played,

through her tears,

seemed to be nothing but frolic and fun, thought of the home with the little green lawn, The Moderato.

CHAS. K. HARRIS.

Your slender form it haunts me still, With all its old time grace, I do not need your photograph To gaze into your eyes; For artless guile, your sunny smile, Your sweet and charming face There's deep within my heart of hearts, Your image ever lies, In not a dawn that breaks, dear love, But brings me back to you; There's walking or in dreaming, dear, In pleasure or in tears, My not a sun that sets, dear heart, But that I long for you.

heart has always longed for you, Through all the weary years.

Refrain.

I never knew 'till now how much I loved you

I never knew I cared till you had gone; I never knew till now that life without you,

Would leave me broken-hearted and forlorn.
never knew how wrong it was to doubt you, Until last night I met you face to face, But now I know I cannot live without you, For I never knew till now, how much I loved you.
