Seymour Furth.

Rosie, Rosie, what troubles you dear? you have not smiled all day.
Look at Rosie, robins is singing, Up in the apple tree.

Tears and wrinkles bring you wrinkles, Rosie, And chase all your dimples away.
Daisies are blooming in the meadow, What have I done to blooming for you and for me.

Birds in blossoms, and gently took her hand in mine. She tried to turn away but

And all nature seems at rest. I'll sit with her once more, as still I made her stay. And listen to those words of love; for in the days of yore, And sing the song she loves the best, for molto ritardando.

Chorus

Mary, my pretty Mary love you because you're cheery, never tired or weary. Some day

Mary, I Love You, 3
I hope that we may go on our honey moon so we can bill and coo underneath the silvery moon, come dear, don't be so slow dear, won't you decide to be my bride then we'll both a-hide, down in lover's town cause Mary I love you, you.
