Crying for you, crying for you, Heart broken lonesome and blue,

I can't disguise

A Charming Waltz Song You'll Love to Sing and Play

My wonderful one, When ever I dream of you, love light a gleaming, I see, My wonderful one, How my wait-ing 'Mid the fall-ing leaves, and gold-en sheaves.

CHORUS

There's a rose in re-pose by the dear old apple tree, to wel-come me, There's a thrush in the brush with the sweet-est mel-o-dy, to wel-come me.
Thro' the tall and might-y lum-bers, Where the gold-en sun-flow'r slum-bers, There's a path-way there Takes me right down where I was born, bred, 'nough said. There's a face full of grace With its tender sympathy to welcome me. There's a smile all the while That I've known from infancy to welcome me. There's dear old mother, dear old dad, Somebody else will be just as glad, Waiting to welcome me. There's a me.
