The twilight was o'er the city, The lights shone thro' the gloam, As a child passed by 'neath the fading sky, Seeking her lonely home. Her heart was sad as she wander'd on, She knew not a mother's love, For the one who lov'd her best on earth, The angels had called above, For the p Slower.

The stars came out in the twilight, And shone from the silent sky On ti_{red} eyes fast closed in sleep; With sweet dreams floating by. Once more she heard her mother's voice Singing the evening hymn; And it soothe'd her care like a whisper'd prayer. When eyes with tears are dim, When eyes with tears are dim.

That night from the Golden Threshold
A light stole o'er the skies,
As an angel came to the quiet earth,
With the love-light in her eyes,
And she bore the sleeping child Away where the sorrows of life are past.
